Motorcycle Accident Claims

The Personal
Injury Practice

Your specialist compensation solicitors

Motorcycling can be one of the most exhilarating experiences – and loads of fun! But sometimes accidents happen, and some of them are serious.

While a motorcycle accident can be very traumatic in several ways – and we would never underestimate that - it's important not to overlook the legalities of making sure you get compensation if it was not your fault.

If you are involved in an accident, it is essential that the police attend the scene ensure a detailed report of the accident, even if it seems insignificant.

- Apparently minor injuries or damage to your motorbike can make a successful accident claim.
- You can make a claim if your motorbike accident was not your fault or only partially your fault.
- Your speed and wearing protective clothing are among many details, that will be considered while the fault is being determined.
- Swift action is essential - an accident should be reported as soon as possible. If the person responsible for your accident doesn't stop or has no insurance, you can still make a claim - see below.
- This will be dealt with by the Motor Insurers Bureau, an organisation through which compensation is found for claims in the UK against uninsured drivers and those involved in 'hit & run' incidents.
